8. Feature: The good, service, or construction has the following unique features, characteristics, or capabilities:
 These teaching kits will be used for proprietary NASP training throughout various schools in Hawaii. Equivalent NASP compound bows are not available elsewhere. The NASP Genesis Bows are specifically designed for youths with low adjustable bow weights and generous draw lengths that fit most individuals. Equipment has a unique design, is low cost/affordable, and compatible to the NASP's teaching principles, objectives, philosophies and stringent safety standards.

9. Essential features. How the unique features, characteristics, or capabilities are essential for the agency to accomplish its work:

In order to teach NASP techniques and for individuals and schools to complete in the local, state, and national NASP tournaments, all of the archery gear must conform to the above NASP teaching kit standard equipment. Standard equipment features interchangeability and compatibility with existing gear. For example, the Genesis Bow weight adjustment is accomplished by complete turns of 360 degrees for 1.5 pounds increase or decrease with up to 9 pounds of weight range. The bows are fitted to be shot with 3 fingers under the arrow nock to prevent arrow lifting and damage to the arrow rest. This NASP standard teaching kit is currently used in over 20 schools throughout Hawaii.

11. Alternate source. The following other possible sources for the good, service, or construction were investigated but do not meet our needs because: National Archery in the Schools Program (NASP) does not recommend substituting the components of the basic archery teaching kit requested in Section 3.
